

Meeting a language partner

Review guide · English

Open response: the example is not a unique answer. Check meaning against the criteria; entering text is not enough.

One possible response

Hola, Inés. Soy Kim y vivo en Lima. Me gusta la música, sobre todo el jazz. Estoy libre el jueves a las cinco. Podemos hablar de música. ¿Te gusta? Un saludo, Kim.

Evidence in the example

c1: Soy Kim y vivo en Lima. — Introduce yourself as Kim from Lima.

Identify the referent: the reader needs to know who or what you mean.

c2: Estoy libre el jueves a las cinco. — Keep Thursday at five.

Keep the fact that lets the reader act without guessing.

c3: Me gusta la música, sobre todo el jazz. — Choose music or books and add a personal preference.

Connect your decision to the need in this situation.

c4: ¿Te gusta? — Ask whether Inés likes that topic.

End with useful information for the next step.

Valid alternatives

Me llamo or soy may introduce the writer. Either topic and any coherent preference are valid. Spain and Latin America forms are accepted equally.

Feedback to improve

A question about time alone misses the requested topic preference; ask whether Inés likes music or books.

Per criterion: NE = no evidence; 0 = not yet met; 1 = partial success or content prompts; 2 = met without content prompts. Record access support without penalising it. No average, official grade or CEFR certification.

Also review: purpose and facts; readable order; language understandable at this level; a justified draft change. Errors that do not block the message may receive support without invalidating the whole text.

Keep your draft. Mark an improvement and explain why it helps the reader; if it already meets the criteria, identify and justify a specific check.

Blank record: criterion / NE–0–1–2 / observed phrase / support used / next step. Keep draft and revision; do not collect personal data.